Highlights of Privileged Events and Glorious Occasions

As a trusted, all-round wealth management partner, CCB (Asia) regularly hosts exclusive customer events designed to empower customers to expand their horizons and connect with like-minded, meaningful connections. To mark the October National Day celebrations, CCB (Asia) held the "CCB (Asia) Star Celebration" celebrating alongside our loyal and visiting guests to create unforgettable memories together. Here is a look back at the previous month's highlights from these events:

National Day Exclusive Campaign: Blending Traditional "Shen" Culture with Modern Banking

From October 1 to 3, 2006, CCB (Asia) extended the operating hours to Saturdays at its Causeway Bay branch and Tsim Sha Tsui branch to serve the financial needs of service holders, and to celebrate National Day, bringing its distinctive blend of traditional "Shen" culture to the period, the branches were transformed into "CCB (Asia) Stars" Celebration" themed venues, featuring a lively atmosphere with festive decorations and a welcoming ambiance. Guests were treated to an evocation of a bygone era—such as traditional Put Chai Ko (steamed rice pudding) and "Hakka Hospitality" tea and coffee, as well as classic retro games, inviting customers to step back in time and enjoy a nostalgic experience. Additionally, the branches offered complimentary gifts, including exclusive commemorative gift boxes, 10% discount on selected products and services, and a chance to win attractive prizes. Through this initiative, CCB (Asia) aimed to connect with new customers, gained deeper insights into their financial goals, and built a stronger relationship with its existing customer base.

National Day Fireworks Gala: Celebrating the 77th Anniversary Together and Writing a New Chapter of Wealth

Investment in High Yield Bonds

Investments in high-yield bonds are additionally subject to higher credit risk and vulnerability to economic cycles. Structured investment products are complex products. Investors should understand the nature of the transaction and the extent of their exposure to risk. FX Linked Deposit

FX Linked Deposit - High Yield Deposit

FX Linked Deposit – High Yield Deposit is a structured product involving derivatives. It is not equivalent to or an alternative to a time deposit. It is exposed to the risk of exchange rate movements of the currencies involved. The return of the product is an unrelated investment product and is not protected by the Hong Kong Deposit Protection Board. Depending on the terms of the product, you may receive a return that is lower than the principal amount invested or may be required to convert your principal amount into a currency that is different from the currency you placed your deposit in at maturity. Interest Rate Risk

Interest rate movements are volatile and may affect bond prices. The value of the investment can fall where interest rates rise. There is an inverse relationship between bond prices and bond yield, which means as bond prices go down, the yield goes up. Generally, the longer the maturity of a bond, the greater its sensitivity to interest rate changes.
